History

Smeg was founded in 1948 as an enamelling factory, working with metals. Today, Smeg, which preserves the acronym Smalterie Metallurgiche Emiliane Guastalla, as a memory of the company's initial activity, is managed by the third generation of entrepreneurs from the Bertazzoni family and represents an international group with direct branches on all continents.

'48

Vittorio Bertazzoni founded Smeg (Smalterie Metallurgiche Emiliane Guastalla) in Guastalla, near Reggio Emilia, in Italy.

A partnership was formed with the architect Renzo Piano, from which, in the following years, ovens, hobs and refrigerators were transformed into authentic design objects.

'97

The FAB refrigerator was born, an object destined to become a true icon in the world of design and an internationally recognized status symbol.

SMEG (Smalterie Metallurgiche Emiliane Guastalla)

Over 70 years of excellence in innovative design & technology.

S M E G is an acronym comprised of four Italian words: Smalterie (enameling factory), Metallurgiche (metal), Emiliane (Emilia Romagna), Guastalla (Guastalla).

Founded in 1948 by Vittorio Bertazzoni, SMEG originated as an enameling and metalworking company based in Guastalla, Italy's Emilia Romagna region.

To this day, SMEG remains a family-owned and operated company that produces stylish home appliances recognized worldwide. SMEG Canada offers an extensive line of kitchen appliances, including their iconic countertop appliances.

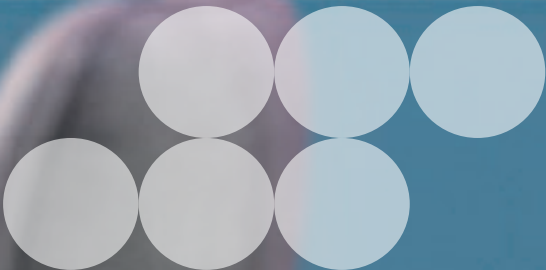

SMEG's certified laboratories strive to develop solutions that respond to the demands of contemporary living, drawing on the company's experience and the most advanced technology.

Moreover, SMEG pays particular attention to the usability of all its products to ensure that they are easy to use and intelligently manage energy consumption - thanks to cutting-edge interfaces and programming solutions.

Right from the development stage, SMEG products are designed to meet the most stringent environmental requirements, for example by favoring the use of materials such as steel or glass, which are easier to dispose of. In addition, during 2021, SMEG obtained ISCC certification for the use of Tritan™ Renew, a recycled copolyester material, which SMEG will use for a gradual replacement of certain plastic components in SDAs. Teaming technology with style has made it possible to create timeless products that have become genuine global icons.
